

Data Management Plan

All project results will be released to the general public. Theoretical findings will be published in relevant conferences and journals. All corpora, annotations, and associated CDIs will be made available and open to the community, first through our website and then through distribution by the LDC. All annotation results and source code generated to analyze the differences between annotation phases will at all times be accessible through the project's GitHub repository and will be released under an Apache 2.0 license. A new version of WordNet with the adjective component enhanced as described in the proposal, will be made freely and publicly available.
